Publicly funded legal centres can offer advice and information on matters such as intervention orders, child protection, separation/divorce, property settlement, child support, leases, custody and other matters pertaining to family violence.

Family violence practitioners have sat with many victim/survivors and assisted them to move beyond the violence. You will not be judged for seeking help or for your experiences and you will be believed. You can seek help as many times as you need. You decide how to engage with a service and what is safe and appropriate for you.

24 Hour Services

State wide services which can provide 24 hour assistance, counselling, referrals and access to crisis accommodation.
